Thomas Kuhn 02/19/2019 Born in Stuttgart on February 10, 1920. I saw for the first time in 1941 in Stuttgart during the Bundestag trials against Reinhard Heydrich in what he called his "the task of solving our existential problems." The president issued his executive order this morning. I gave that order and when I went to the Oval Office for the signing, the press was all waiting outside wondering why I was going in there. The president is not accustomed to seeing the press at his door. I was surprised to see that they were there and I went in and I signed it there. Well, I can't get into the specifics of how this is going to work, because it's an internal matter and there are a lot of people concerned with it. That was the way it was designed and the way it was structured, but I'm not going to get into a lot of what it will entail at the moment. But what it will involve is that all illegal immigrants will be required to use some sort of biometric identifier. They will be required to register for the program and you will be required to have a biometric identifier, which I just need to make sure it is done correctly. I understand the need for this as a deterrent to the criminal element. And, by the way, I just want to make something perfectly clear. They were not required to come to this country. We are not looking to blame people for coming to this country. But it is just like the immigration point. People may be here illegally, but they were not required to be here. The purpose of the biometric identifier will be to see that they are here legally. So they will be required to come into a facility and register. And the registration will be used in the future to determine whether they can get a driver's license or not. The reason why you'll be able to get a license, but not necessarily be able to use it, is going to be based on what your test scores are in English and then driver's test. And, by the way, I'm just a little bit skeptical. My name has been in the newspapers for some time now as saying that I'm not really a big fan of people using social media. And now I'm going to say it again. Because it's important. But I think the big thing that's going to happen is that you will see what we call Social Credit. Ess
